LAID AT REST

The Funeral of the Late L. W. Robinson Largely Attended

Daily Territorial Enterprise, January 15, 1897

The remains of the late L. W. Robinson were laid to rest at Carson yesterday. The funeral was unusually largely attended, many of the friends of the deceased going to Carson on the special train provided. Large numbers of the G. A. R., Knights of Pythias, Battery A, Rathbone Sisters, Miners' Union and Locomotive Firemen all of which organizations the deceased was a member, attended the services a large delegation of the Locomotive Firemen coming from Wadsworth. The services at the house on Ridge street, which were conducted by the Rev. Eddie of Carson, were short. When the train pulled out at 1:45 there was not even standing room in the two cars provided. At Carson the cortege which followed the remains to the cemetery was an imposing one.

The delegations were augmented by a squad from the Carson Guard and the Firemen from Wadsworth. Besides the Episcopal services the G. A. R. funeral services were said at the grave. The Battery (sic) Band furnished music and a farewell saute (sic) was fired. The train of two cars was so crowded going down that the railroad company donated an extra car for the return. The train arrived in Virginia at about 4:30 o'clock.
