The eastward flood flows toward downtown Carson City in early 2017 were, I hope, a "loud wake-up call" for civic officials.

While residential areas on the west side of our town continue to expand, they feed an increasing proportion of hard-surface runoff ... particularly from roofs and streets.

As a long-time westsider, and flood victim (I live only 3½ blocks southeast of the ominous Thompson-at-King-Street upwelling), I ask you to promptly ensure substantial, carefully planned action to counteract the expanding discrepancy between existing storm-drain capacity and current/near-future needs.
